19. OWNERSHIP OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CREATED DURING FIELDWORK PLACEMENTS
Under Curtin's 'Intellectual Property: Ownership and Commercialisation Policy and Procedures' students normally own the copyright in assignments, reports and theses that they produce as part of their University course. However, when students undertake professional practice there may be circumstances where the host organisation seeks to assume ownership of any Intellectual Property (IP) that is produced while on professional practice. Materials produced by students during professional practice might include manuals, brochures, training packages, worksheets, or a variety of other publications or resources.

Host organisations may claim ownership on the grounds that they generally initiate and provide ongoing support, resources and supervision for work-related projects which students undertake as part of their professional practice.

Under 'moral rights' provisions of the Copyright Act 1968 students are entitled to be attributed as the creators of original materials that they produce as part of their professional practice placement. This means that students should receive a credit or acknowledgement, regardless of whether it has been determined that the host organisation owns the IP in the work.
